Electronic Corner Revived

Do you have questions about new technologies in the Depository Library Program that you would like to have answered? Are there electronic depository issues that beg for discussion and need a forum?

The "Electronic Corner" column in Administrative Notes will be revived early in 1991 with an interactive twist. The column will continue to be devoted to electronic technologies in depositories, but the new version will be a regular feature and will invite questions, issue topics, and responses from readers. The "Electronic Corner" will sometimes be devoted to answering specific questions posed by depository librarians and at other times will provide space for discussion of issues of general interest to librarians involved with the new technologies. Jane Bartlett, Manager of LPS' Information Technology Program, will act as editor of the column. Questions, issue topics, and responses to issue topics should be submitted in writing to:

Jane Bartlett
Electronic Corner
U.S. Government Printing Office
Library Programs Service (SLL)
Washington DC 20401

Submissions must be accompanied by name, institutional name, and phone number. Questions and issue topics published will not be attributed, but published responses to issues will bear the library name. LPS reserves the privilege of selecting and editing submissions.

EEOC Case Decisions

During FY 1988 and 1989, EEOC Case Decisions were supplied to depository libraries under a contract between the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and its contractor, Information Handling Services (IHS). EEOC paid for the duplication and shipment of the diazo microfiche for depositories out of its budget.

This EEOC/IHS contract expired in June 1989. In a subsequent EEOC/IHS contract, effective August 1989, the EEOC Case Decisions were supplied only to paid subscribers. As EEOC lacked funds to continue paying for distribution of the microfiche out of its budget, EEOC directed IHS to suspend shipments to depository libraries.

Representatives from EEOC and the Joint Committee on Printing negotiated that EEOC would purchase second generation silver reproducible microfiche from IHS and supply them to the Library Programs Service (LPS) effective October 1989. In turn, LPS would use an existing microfiche contract to duplicate diazos and mail the microfiche to depositories.

Due to budget constraints in FY 90, EEOC initiated a purchase order for the silver microfiche in early 1990. Throughout 1990, LPS monitored the order and finally received the silver masters for the period June 1989 - September 1990 on October 5, 1990.

LPS initiated print orders for the production of diazo microfiche immediately. Depository libraries will receive EEOC Case Decisions in November 1990.

During FY 91, EEOC may experience the same budget constraints as in FY 90. While EEOC is expected to purchase the silver microfiche for the Depository Library Program, there is no guarantee that the delays of 1990 will not recur in 1991.

Administrative Notes Cumulative Table of Contents Distributed on Floppy Diskette

Shipping list 90-0003-E, dated 10/22/90, included a 5.25-inch double-sided, double-density floppy diskette containing, in ASCII format, the Administrative Notes Cumulative Table of Contents, covering Vol. 1, no. 1 through Vol. 11, no. 21. Each diskette contains a duplicate copy of the file for backup purposes. The diskette carries SuDocs class number GP 3.16/3-2:floppy and Item number 0556-C.

Readers Exchange

Govdoc-L: Online Discussion of Government Documents Issues.

1. What is Govdoc-L?

The short form 'Govdoc-l' designates a roundtable discussion which takes place across computer networks through electronic mail (e-mail). Govdoc-L@PSUVM is physically located on the BITNET network.

Govdoc-L@PSUVM is a single e-mail address. All the mail sent to Govdoc-L@PSUVM is 'read' by a program called Listserv which is installed in one of the computers at PSU. Listserv then 'reads' a list of all the subscribers and obeys commands placed in a file which identifies us as Govdoc-l collectively. Listserv then routes all mail sent to Govdoc-l@PSUVM to anyone who is on the subscriber's list for the discussion Govdoc-l.

What is discussed on Govdoc-L?

Some of the topics that are discussed on this list are:

- Depository libraries planning for electronic dissemination (e.g. CD-Roms for Census 1990 data, Toxnet CD and others) of Federal documents.
- The National Research and Education Network NREN and its potential for accessing online government information.
- What kinds of things are being done to encourage/discourage GPO from distributing documents in machine readable formats?
- Depository libraries who do not have the technology - or funding- to support machine readable formats.
- Depository libraries planning on or in the process of automating their documents collection catalogs.
- Shipping lists, claims from GPO.
- Managing documents collections, including Microform materials.
- End-user education for Federal documents use and New Staff training.
- news about legislation, as well as Government Agency and GPO plans.

What is involved in participating on Govdoc-L?

There is no user fee associated with subscribing to Govdoc-L. However, there are certain equipment/software requirements:

Initially you must have a computer account on a computer that is linked to the BITNET or the Internet computer networks. In other words you need to be able to use electronic mail. Other requirements* are:

1. Microcomputer
2. communications software (Kermit, Procomm etc.)
3. telephone
4. Modem

*unless you are able to use dedicated terminals available on a campus site.

Strategies for Access to computer accounts:

I. Academic Libraries.

Most academic libraries are associated with universities or colleges. The majority of academic institutions have computers which they have linked to one of the networks. Most universities make computer accounts available to their faculty and staff. Getting a computer account is normally a matter of contacting your computer services office for an application. There is almost never a real money charge for those accounts. Although your usage may be deducted from your departmental computer time allotment. If your academic institution does not have network access see the two options below.

II. Public Libraries in cities with Academic Institutions with Network Access.

Public Library Librarians and other unaffiliated individuals can request computer accounts at nearby academic institutions. Dan Updegrove's et al, article "Electronic Mail and Networks: New Tools for University Administrators" CAUSE/EFFECT, v.13, Spring 1990 pp. 41-48 or send an e-mail message (or interactive command) to:

LISTSERV@BITNIC

with the command:

GET EMAILNET UPDEGR_D

discusses this kind of access:

"Virtually all research universities and many comprehensive universities and liberal arts colleges are already connected to BITNET and/or one of the mid-level networks....If you have an account on a campus mainframe connected to one of these networks, you are probably authorized to use the network facilities described....If your campus is not connected, you have two choices: ...or obtain a computer account on the nearest campus with a network connection.....TO OBTAIN A GUEST ACCOUNT AT ANOTHER CAMPUS FOR NETWORK ACCESS, CONTACT THEIR COMPUTER CENTER."

Many institutions will give accounts to unaffiliated individuals who have legitimate interests. Some charge a fee, which Updegrove says is usually nominal.($25-$50 per year). Libraries with access to state networks or local organization networks (e.g. New Jersey, Indiana, Freenet in Ohio) may try to get access through them.

III. Libraries isolated from or denied access to network connections at academic institutions.

Compuserve is the only commercial communications network that I am aware of that will allow users to make e-mail connections to Bitnet/INTERNET networks at a sufficient complexity to allow the user to participate in a e-mail discussion list like GovDoc-L.

IV. Government Agency Libraries.

The government has many computer sites available. Some agencies have their own computers on the networks. Some use the National Institute of Health Computer Utility, NIHCU. Contact them for further information. Others get access through a nearby academic institution.

How to subscribe to Govdoc-L?

Listserv@PSUVM is the e-mail address of the Listserv program. Messages sent to the address Listserv@PSUVM are read as commands by the program. If they make no sense, the program rejects them.

When subscribing to Govdoc-l you send a command to the Listserv@PSUVM. That is you sent an e-mail message to:

LISTSERV@PSUVM

with a blank subject field - with the the command:

Subscribe Govdoc-l yourfirstname yourlastname

You may also send an e-mail note or call me at the addresses and phone numbers listed at the end of this announcement and I will subscribe you.
